ACLU of Wisconsin Foundation (Contractor) conducts interactive workshops, as well as in-school, after-school and summer programs in neighborhoods where high rates of violence, joblessness, and poverty are prevalent; contact between police and members of racial and ethnic minorities are disproportionately high; and students are overwhelmingly at risk for academic failure. Our program leadership establishes meaningful relationships with youth and teaches them how to secure a successful future through positive interaction with their peers, community leaders, elected officials, and adult mentors. Through the use of art, we encourage self-expression and help students enhance their confidence while developing their leadership skills.

Hmong American Friendship Assn Inc. (Vendor) The Learning, Celebrating, and Sharing Hmong History and Culture project builds on the Hmong American Friendship Association's previous Arts & Humanities grants to combine the teaching of traditional dance and qeej (a windpipe instrument) with cultural showcase performances. These community events will entertain audiences while also educating them about Hmong history and culture through the sharing of a documentary (being produced as part of our 2021 & 2022 grant) based on video interviews with Hmong elders about their life experiences. Our goal is to strengthen the youth's ties to traditional Hmong cultural arts and also build a sense of identity and pride in their community's history of courage and resilience.

Wisconsin Conservatory of Music The Summer Music Institute (SMI) is a one-week, full-day, holistic music camp for grades 3-12 that serves students of any musical ability, who want to advance their musical skill set and explore their interests. The camp has the goal of inspiring students interested in music to weave it into the fabric of their lives and dedicate themselves to honing their craft and experiencing the benefits of music education. It creates a community of motivated students. Students gain experience performing publicly -- practicing artistic, technical, and ensemble etiquette skills learned through SMI participation. Wisconsin Conservatory of Music faculty, MPS music teachers, and special guest instructors deliver in-depth music experiences to about 200 camp students, providing group lessons, ensemble coaching, and sectionals that support MPS music programming. Students are assessed and assigned based on level. The Institute culminates in a final performance from all student groups for family, friends, and community members.
