Professional development session to groups of student. Five one hour sessions starting Oct 26 2021, Nov. 9th, Nov. 16 and Nov 30th Session held in room 332

This session is designed to address the anti-social personality that leads to violent behavior in and out of school. Session 1 is characterized by an introductory poetic performance by Muhibb Dyer and Kwabena Nixon. Following the performance, the students are then asked to do a writing exercise called the truth is that encourages the participants to write about the painful events in their lives. This emotionally charged exercise often results in young people shedding a few tears as they begin to identify, for the first time, the true cause of their behavioral issues. In a group setting, the added effect is that it allows students in the same peer group to have sympathy for each other, which in the end can deter future conflict among students that previously were at odds. Students begin to have an epiphany, that the conflicts in school settings that arise amongst themselves are a direct result of the pain in their lives and nothing more. This type of support group environment can build a sense of togetherness born out of the commonality of shared experience. Talk to Your Pain This session is designed to address one of the primary causes of substance abuse, failed relationships. Session 2 is characterized by a gestalt exercise called the chair where the participants are asked with the help of an instructor to role play a conversation with a person that has hurt them deeply. The goal of this exercise is to get the participants to understand that facing their problems brings resolution and avoiding the problem leads to a mentality of escapism characterized by regular drug and alcohol usage. Statistically speaking, students that participate in this type of self-destructive activity have a higher rate of school suspensions and poor attendance in general. The emphasis of this workshop is to get students to realize that their behavior is a direct result of many things that were beyond their control. They may have not had a choice in the traumati
